Dear Federal Election Commission:

Citizens for Informed Voting in the Commonwealth ceased functioning after the 1990 elections. We never gave anything to any candidates or to any other organizations, independent or otherwise, that supported candidates.

We were a tiny group with very little money, which we used for stationery, xeroxing, a telephone, and the salary of our part-time coordinator. After we quit, in 1991 we donated all our remaining money (about $1,000 total) to four peace and justice organizations (not political organizations), and intended to close out our account. Apparently one of those organizations did not cash their check, so we had $277.60 left in the bank, which I have finally donated to a peace group, Peace Action.

We have had no activity of any kind for five years; we have been disbanded all that time.

I hope that is a good enough report.

I am leaving for a semester of sabbatical research in the town of Germersheim, Germany, and do not know yet know the address of the apartment that I shall find. If you send a letter to the above address, it will eventually be forwarded to me.

Grace and peace,

Glen H. Stassen
