The National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) is a membership organization with 28 affiliated state associations; thus it would be the parent organization. Members in the Illinois Corn Growers Association (ICGA) are also members of the NCGA because a portion of their dues are paid to NCGA. The NCGA has a separate segregated fund, and the Illinois Corn Growers Association has their own separate segregated fund. Not all state associations have a separate segregated fund. ICGA can only make contributions to Illinois congressional representatives and senators, while NCGA can contribute to candidates from various states.
