In response to your letter of February 21, 2018 regarding our Year End Report for 2017, I have investigated the source of the reporting error and determined that the three contributions cited in your letter were received and properly deposited into our separate independent expenditure only (non-contribution) account. These contributions should have been disclosed on line 17 of the Detailed Summary Page. As I mentioned in my telephone call on March 27, 2018, I encountered a problem with filing the proper amendment to correct this situation. Inasmuch as I am using a PC simulator program on my Macintosh computer in order to run FEC File software, an unexpected compatibility problem emerged when I tried to file the amendment. I am working with the VM Ware software company technical support, the company that produces the PC simulator software, to resolve the problem and allow me to continue to use FEC File on my computer. They have suggested several possible fixes to the problem which I am working through. They require downloading new versions of software and testing on a new computer. I estimate that this process is going to take several more days of effort to resolve. As soon as I have restored the FEC File functionality I will file the proper amendments.
