Office of the Chairman

Dear Ms. Stagg:

Thank you for contacting the Republican National Committee and for sharing your concerns and ideas. Our Party's success depends on the active participation of supporters like you, and I am glad you took the time to write.

I appreciate your comments concerning potential Republican candidates for President in 2012. I hope you will become an active supporter of the candidate whose views reflect your own values. Just remember that while financial support is needed, it is not the only way for you to support your chosen candidate. Every campaign can always use an extra volunteer to help man the phones, hand out literature, etc.

The Republican National Committee does not become involved in the Presidential primary selection process, as stated in the Rules of the Republican Party adopted by the Republican National Convention in 2008. You may access these rules at our website, http://www.gop.com/index.php/rnc_counsel/. If you do not have internet access, I would be happy to send you a copy.

Republican presidential candidates are nominated by delegates to the Republican National Convention. Once the nomination is accepted by the candidate, the Republican National Committee begins working with the presidential candidate by providing a wealth of resources necessary to win in the general election. At no point prior to a candidate accepting the nomination does the Republican National Committee become involved with presidential candidates.

I look forward to working with you to return a Republican to the White House in 2012.
Thank you again for your support.
