

I am offering additional information as requested by Jennifer Jaketic regarding questions specific to the disclosure differences of my receipts and disbursements on my amended year end report for 2005.

On my original report, I provided an estimate of my receipts and disbursements. As you will notice, I provided one large un-itemized amount on my original report. An amount I estimated from all of the totals from my bank statements.

I was forced to make an estimate, because of a delay in receiving our data on receipts from my data management company. Like many organizations we keep all of our donor receipt as well as some disbursement information in a database that is off site. Unfortunately because of some programming issues with our data base company, I was not able to receive my data in a timely manner, and make my deadline for my FEC report. So I used the information I did have and made my report with a close estimate. Once all of the individual data from each donor was received, I downloaded into my FEC software and amended my report. I felt it more appropriate to at least file my report in a timely manner with as much information as I could provide, and then correct that information in an amendment.
