August 24, 2022 RFAI Response (April Quarterly Report)

When we receive a contribution from an LLC, we prepare correspondence to the contributor to determine whether it is taxed as a partnership or corporation. If we receive a response indicating the entity is taxed as a corporation, we refund the contribution.

When we receive a contribution from a business entity, we prepare correspondence to the contributor to determine its status. If we receive a response that the entity is a corporation, we refund the contribution.

As to the specific list in the letter, we took the following actions:

Central Valley Automotive - sent letter, received no response, refunded the contribution.

Fiahlho Farms - received information from the contributor that is is a sole proprietorship. We amended the report to include this information.

JS Linens - Sent letter, received no response, refunded the contribution.

Lorenzi Rentals - sent letter, received response that is is a sole proprietorship. We amended the report to include this information.

For the LLC contributions, we could not confirm how the entities were taxed, so we returned the contributions. We received no information that the contributions were impermissible, we just couldn't confirm how they were taxed.

All refunded contributions have already been reported or will be reported in the period in which the refund occurred.

We have determined that there was a breakdown in our tracking system for letters that did not receive a response. We have made the necessary corrections so it does not happen in the future, and will ensure future reports add notes with clarifying language on these types of contributions.

We have also amended this report to note the unregistered entities have enough federally permissible funds to make the contributions to our committee.

As for the in-kind contribution, it was supposed to be attributed to the co-host of the event, but was inadvertently designated to the general election instead. Out of an abundance of caution, we are refunding the contribution.

We can provide copies of all refund checks as well.
