The diagram illustrates a structural frame for a building. It features a grid of columns labeled A through H and beams labeled 1 through 4. The building has four floors above a ground floor. The columns are spaced evenly across the width of the building. The beams are spaced evenly across the height of the building. The floor slabs are represented by the horizontal lines between the beams. The diagram shows the structural layout of the building, including the columns, beams, and the floor slabs.
